Haliburton county youth hub renovations fully underway

The tragic and untimely death of Peter Fearrey brought renovation and construction work at the Hali County Youth Hub to a virtual stand-still.

"Peter was very committed to working on the youth hub, and making sure the youth voice was heard throughout the project," says Stephanie MacLaren, VP community programs at Haliburton Highlands Health Services. "Anyone who knew him will agree that Peter was a genuinely caring person who always went out of his way to help anyone who needed help. Peter's legacy will live on in all of the lives he touched along the way; he will always be a part of us and the Hali Youth Hub." Peter Fearrey worked for HHHS for many years, one of the youth hub's principal partner organizations, along with Point in Time.

Renovations are now once again moving forward as two local construction contractors have agreed to collaborate to project manage the extensive renovations and re-construction of the lower level, complete the renovations on the main level, and coordinate the myriad of other trades needed to complete the project.

"Local tradespeople, businesses and residents are being extremely generous with their time and contributions helping to make Youth Wellness Hubs Ontario's Hali County Youth Hub a reality. It's real evidence of how valued youth are as members of our community and how the community recognizes the future that they hold," says Marg Cox, executive director at Point in Time.

"For example, Kieran Gillooly, of Kegel Heating & Cooling, donated all his time and labour to the Youth Hub to install a new central heat pump system. That is an especially generous example of the support we've been receiving," she said.

Renovations are moving forward at the Hali Youth Hub as two local construction contractors have agreed to project manage the efforts. Fundraising is underway through an online gift registry. Organizers are hoping to open the hub by April. /Photo submitted

A new and improved kitchen design has been completed addressing accessibility requirements and integrating public health conditions. Trevor Chaulk, of Chaulk Design Studio, worked hard to meet the changed requirements within budget constraints, and will help provide what'll be a great space for gathering and meal prep. The drawings have been submitted for approvals, and building permits are in the works.

Meetings have been taking place with an accessibility expert who is working on a new design that will bring everyone in through the front door (a new ramp will be built to code from the parking lot), and a wheelchair lift installed to access the main floor and lower level.

Drawings are being completed for a totally renovated lower level space to accommodate a family room, quiet space for homework, primary care, counselling and office spaces.

From a capital budget perspective, there is much to be done. As per the funding agreements, the majority of the three-year funding received from Youth Wellness Hubs Ontario and the Haliburton County Development Corporation will go towards operating and staffing expenses to provide a broad range of services and supports delivered in an integrated fashion. While $85,000 has been earmarked in Year One for renovations and capital expenses, in addition to the $150,000 estimated capital costs, there will be $130,000 in additional accessibility costs.

"Fundraising efforts are continuing on multiple levels, including donations that can be made through the Gift Registry, at www.pointintime.ca/gift-registry," says Cox, "and although some programming is taking place at the Hub now, our aim is to be open and fully operational by the end of April."

Movin' on up

(Still gushing after all these years.)

I moved to Haliburton in October '17
I'd been here many times before; it cannot be unseen
Once my senses savour what is perfect, what is sweet
I settle in alliance with all souls on Highland Street
They wave or nod or hold the door:
politeness is a thing

They pick up mitts lost in the snow and hang them by the string
Upon a bush or bench until its chilly finder shouts
'Hurrah for thoughtfulness, new friends, and literal handouts'
This Highland village owns its charms:
that plaid - ubiquitous
Proud red and black ambassador on daily
Can-Ar bus
Shy deer find apples on these lawns; tall moose are spotted too
Wild turkeys strut entitlement, not deference to you Nearby, the woods and painter skies hold more array of wild
The school bus kids are used to it:
it's LIFE here for a child
To spot a snake, bald eagle, bat, coyote, owl or bear
So awesome, but so normal to be savvy and aware
That living here's an honour, so rich in all 'the feels'
Hence gratitude for County is the ethos that appeals
In four big crazy seasons, each prized by old and small
Disparage not a single thing: that dreamy moon loves all

Cadets recognized with Strathcona award

DARREN LUM
County Life Staff

Winning the Lord Strathcona Trophy confirms great things are happening with The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment 1129 Royal Canadian Army Cadet Corps – Haliburton.

Named after Lord Strathcona, a Scottish-born Canadian philanthropist, the award honours the best small corps of 2018 for being "the most efficient in its class and perpetuates the solicitude of the donor for patriotism, fitness and discipline in young Canadians."

Commanding officer Dan Collings was proud of the Haliburton cadet corps and said this recognition reaffirms the program is fulfilling its ideals.

"This is particularly important to us lately as it reflects the amount of effort and programming occurring at the Haliburton Army Cadets. The award is determined by the amount of activities both in Haliburton and away that the cadets attend and on our regular attendance. We have been trying quite hard the last two years and we are now providing pipes and drums training, biathlon, marksmanship skills, mountain biking, and orienteering programs right here in Haliburton," he said in a prepared statement.

The cadet program is a national program for Canadian boys and girls aged 12 to 18.

It includes the Royal Canadian Sea Cadets, the Royal Canadian Army Cadets and the Royal Canadian Air Cadets. Cadets are not members of the Canadian Armed Forces and have no obligation to join.

"Cadets are encouraged to become active, responsible members of their communities. They make valuable contributions to Canadian society on a daily basis in terms of environmental, citizenship and community activities," the cadets website reads.

The local club has 15 cadets from 12 to 16, who come from all around the Highlands.

They are provided a diverse range of opportunities including the expected marching, marksmanship and adventure experiences, playing instruments, mountain biking, trail running, snowshoeing and biathlon (Nordic skiing and range shooting).

The Legion in Haliburton where the cadets meet is close to venues for biking and Nordic skiing.

Besides the obvious physical benefits, these activities provide opportunities to develop focus, test personal levels of mental fortitude, and improve self-esteem.

Collings was proud to see representatives from sponsors and supporters from the Minden and District Lions Club, and the Legions of Minden, Haliburton, Wilberforce and Cardiff during the trophy presentation.

The award is also a credit to the zone training officer captain France Lachapelle, who provides support and understands the challenges that face cadet corps in rural areas, the partnerships with the Haliburton Highlands Nordic Ski Club, the Haliburton Mountain Bike Club, and volunteers, who are part of the Army Cadet League.

The cadets' program in Haliburton County continues to grow, as canoeing and rock climbing are expected to be added in the future.

Collings said the corps' score was very strong relative to the others and was in the "90 percentile."

"We are extremely pleased to be recognized for the hard work and dedication of the cadets and staff in Haliburton," he said.

Children's program celebrates 25 years

ANGELICA INGRAM
Special to County Life

When Juanita Miscio found out she was pregnant she couldn't have imagined what her future was going to look like three years later.

A single mom of a three-year-old son, Miscio credits her accomplishments and journey as a mom to the support she received through the Community Action Program for Children (CAPC) run by SIRCH Community Services.

The CAPC program is for families with young children (under six) and is designed to help level the playing field for parents who are facing challenges such as limited income, social isolation, post-partum depression, or single parenting.

For a couple of hours each week, participants are invited to connect with other young families, learn about local resources and enjoy nutritious food. In Haliburton County, it's usually the moms who attend.

Miscio says she is able to ask all sorts of questions and gain knowledge about local organizations, such as the YWCA, a local financial service, and Heat Bank, which have all helped her with things like her heating bills, learning about life insurance and more.

"It opens up these things I have been curious about, or I didn't know that were available for me," she said. "I find out new information constantly," she said. "I was able to meet these wonderful women. Lots of the women there I have gotten really close with; we have long lasting friendships."

Miscio and her son Jaxon travel from Halls Lake to the weekly group meetings, which take place in Haliburton. She says living on the outskirts of the county can be isolating and difficult, especially since she doesn't own a vehicle. But despite the distance, Miscio always tries her best to attend the weekly gatherings for the social benefits. SIRCH helps with the travel costs.

"It can be difficult when you're stuck with a toddler," she said. "At the very beginning I had a bit of post-partum and was feeling a lot of doubt when I first gave birth … it was super difficult … I was very isolated, I had no cell service or internet."

Since 1994 CAPC has been delivered locally through SIRCH Community Services. The federal initiative was started to help children who face challenges that may put their health at risk, such as poverty, social and geographic isolation, substance use and family violence. Funded through the Public Health Agency of Canada, CAPC is currently serving 223,000 vulnerable children and parents in more than 3,000 communities across Canada.

Adrienne Clark has attended CAPC for more than a decade with her three daughters, who range from 10 years old to four. When Clark first heard about CAPC she was hesitant to go because of an anxiety disorder she has.

"Dealing with people was not something I prefer," she said. "But I needed the information and I needed to get out of the house and I needed to learn more about how to have a kid and what to do, so I went."

Clark enjoyed the intimate environment the group offered and the relaxed atmosphere. Because her youngest daughter was born with a physical disability, Clark tried her best to get her to socialize with other children, which she found beneficial.

"In a small town, where everyone is so spread out, socialization is really important," Clark said.

The mom of three has recommended CAPC to other moms she knows. She says her daughters, especially the youngest, absolutely loved attending and playing with the other children.

Moms encouraged to give CAPC a try

Clark credits part of the program's success to the coordinator, Margaret Shelly, whom she calls "fantastic."

Shelly has been coordinating the program for the past four years and has said that when she was a new mom, she faced similar situations as the moms in the local CAPC group.

"A group such as this would have been such a big help for me," said Shelly. "It provides so much support, connection and tangible resources. I've had moms say that they don't know what they'd do if they didn't have group; and I could tell they meant it. Many have benefited greatly just by making a new circle of friends and feeling less isolated."

Shelly says CAPC is a godsend for many families and she has seen many successes come from it. She believes the program not only connects moms with local resources, but gives them a sense of confidence they may not have had before attending.

"One mom was connected to a home daycare agency while she was with CAPC and has since opened her own licensed home daycare."

Gena Robertson has been the executive director of SIRCH Community Services since its inception 30 years ago and knows how impactful just feeling connected is.

"Most of us have gone through vulnerable periods in our lives," said Robertson. "And during those periods it helped to have someone to connect with, to be supportive, to give information and guidance. It helped to get concrete resources, learn new skills, and network with others who are experiencing similar things. CAPC provides those things to parents with young children who are facing challenges."

Miscio recently applied to college to become a veterinary technician and is hoping to begin classes this fall. She is currently completing high school science classes through Contact North. It was the experience of going through a difficult breakup and becoming a single mom last year that pushed Miscio to follow her dreams and focus on going back to school.

"By the end of last year I thought I need to figure out a career for myself that can support me and my son." she said. "Working in the resort business [her current job] it's difficult, especially around here, it's a seasonal job."

Looking back at the person she was a few years ago and is now, Miscio says she is in a much better place. "It's because of the CAPC group, it really helped me," she said. "I was very skeptical in the beginning to go, but if you just give it that one chance just to go one day, it can change your life. It changed my life."

For more information about CAPC visit www.sirch.on.ca or email info@sirch.on.ca.

The Ice Cube Gallery experience

ALTHOUGH SEVERAL hundred people apparently visited the Ice Cube Gallery at the Bonnie View Inn on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 9 and 10, some of you who didn't go might have wondered what it was all about.

Briefly, it was an art exhibition featuring four artists, showing their wares in three ice fishing huts, stationed out on a frozen Lake Kashawigamog. The artists were Victoria Ward, Rod Prouse, Chris Hanson and Hendrika Sonnenberg. As part of the experience Bonnie View provided a special menu, and the playing of vintage vinyl. There was locally inspired food from Rhubarb, served in a tent, out on the lake, plus a fire pit and a small skating rink. On Sunday there was to be a pancake breakfast.

GEORGE FARRELL
On Arts/Culture

So what was the experience like? Well, I arrived at the Bonnie View at about 3 p.m. on the Saturday afternoon; a beautiful sunny day. I was surprised at the number of cars lining Kashagawigamog Lake Road; and the parking lot was full. I made my way down the icy path towards the lake, greeting friends and strangers who were coming from, and going to the event.

There were lots of people and some dogs milling about on the lake, and more people lining up to see the art in the ice huts. It's obviously tight quarters in an ice hut but people were jostling for position good-naturedly. Eventually I was able to wedge my way into the first hut, which contained images of Ward's paintings of ice huts, several of the huts being brightly coloured. I'd seen a few of these works before and I find them alluring, whimsical, and very Canadian. I especially liked the mobile of tiny huts suspended from a branch.

I then moved on to the hut of Hanson and Sonnenberg. They often present as a team, and their hut was a bit of a surprise. Mounted on the walls were what looked like white metal panels which appeared to be completely blank. I was baffled. Surely there was more involved here. And there was, though I had to really look for it. I did manage, I think, to see a very faint outline of the word Minden, embedded deep within one of the panels. On another panel I might have discerned tiny cracks. Cracks in the ice? I don't know, and I left none the wiser.

I went out again into the icy-bright sunshine, and on to the last ice hut; that of Rod Prouse. On the walls of his hut were paintings in his latest style, which I found simply stunning. Like Ward, he too had an image portraying fish huts out on the ice, but his huts were in the background; the eye drawn to them through ornate, abstract foliage that told its own stories. It was a piece that I would love to have taken home.

There was a lot to experience, in addition to the art, at the Ice Cube Gallery, and it really needed more than one visit to experience it all. The next day I saw some images on Facebook of the ice huts at night, and the scene looked magical. I would like to have experienced that and to have sampled some food, which had all gone by the time I got there. But there's always next year, and I sincerely hope that there is a next year, because they're on to a good thing with the Ice Cube Gallery. I'd like to suggest more artists, more art, and of course more huts. And reminiscent of Ward's images, I'd love to see the huts painted in bright colours.

Next week in this column I'll have an interview with Rod Prouse, so stay tuned.

"Ice Huts," by Rod Prouse offered a stunning portrayal of an iconic Canadian scene. His ornate, abstract foliage told a story of its own.

One of the installations was an ice hut mobile by artist Victoria Ward. The bright colours drew the attention of columnist George Farrell, who visited the Ice Cube Gallery on Kashagawigamog Feb. 9.

Top 10 things you never said when you were younger

LATELY, I HAVE been noticing subtle changes in my go-to phrases. I'm not sure if this is good or bad, but the most interesting thing is I would have never said any of these things when I was younger.

Humour Columnist

Here are the top 10 phrases I now use.

1. (While on the phone with someone) Hey can you call me? I can't seem to find my cellphone. Oh, never mind.
2. Has anyone seen my glasses?
3. Relax. Apples are supposed to have worms in them.
4. You can never go wrong with a nice cardigan.
5. Sure, that tattoo looks great now….
6. (At the grocery store, when a kid with a cart passes you.) What does he think this is? The Indy 500?
7. I'm doing a Metamucil run. Anyone need anything at the store?
8. They have a great deal on riding lawn mowers.
9. You call that music?
10. Dangerous? We never lost anyone playing lawn darts. I mean, aside from Mike.

100 Kids Who Care donate to Woodlands Wildlife Sanctuary

SUE TIFFIN
County Life Staff

Lincoln worked around the house and helped out in exchange for some money to donate. Harper was gifted some cash from the tooth fairy for the loss of her first tooth, and brought it along. Zebedee shovelled snow from the deck to earn some funds to pass on. Hawksley separated 10 per cent from his allowance savings, Tristan gave his birthday money, and Jordyn contributed from her baby sitting pay.

More than three dozen young philanthropists came prepared with up to $10 for the inaugural meeting of the 100 Kids Who Care Haliburton County giving circle group held in Minden on Feb. 5, pouring their donations into a jar of a collective fund they would gift to one chosen charity at the end of the night.

Prior to the meeting beginning, the kids gathered had the chance to look closely at a stuffed owl, see photos of rehabilitated animals as well as activities that take place in the area, flip through brochures detailing the benefits of horse therapy and speak with representatives from three charities that received the most votes during advance registration to present this time to the group: Woodlands Wildlife Sanctuary, Point in Time Centre for Children, Youth & Parents and Walkabout Farm Therapeutic Riding Association Inc. Monika Melichar spoke for Woodlands Wildlife Sanctuary, detailing the work the Minden-based wildlife rehabilitation centre does to care for orphaned and injured wildlife. Kendra Curry spotlighted the programs like day camps that Point in Time organizes to help children and families experiencing difficulties, and helped lead the gathered group in yoga exercises for mindfulness. Jennifer Semach and Gerry Sutcliffe shared the work being done at Walkabout Farm, encouraging group participants to feel the weight of one bucket of food for Casey, a rescue horse who is in rehabilitation to become a therapy horse on the Minden-based farm.

More than three dozen children and teens came out to the inaugural meeting of 100 Kids Who Care, a local giving circle, on Feb. 5 at the Minden community centre. The group heard from representatives from Woodlands Wildlife Sanctuary, Point in Time and Walkabout Farm Therapeutic Riding Association Inc. Each group participant brought a donation up to $10 to add to a collective fund for the evening, and at the end of the night, voted on which charity they wanted to support. The winning charity was Woodlands Wildlife Sanctuary, which received $400 from the group of young philanthropists. 100 Kids Who Care hopes to meet twice annually./SUE TIFFIN Staff

A vote was taken by paper ballot, with kids using markers to colour in their choice, and the first charity supported by the 100 Kids Who Care group was announced: Woodlands Wildlife Sanctuary. The kids presented Melichar with funds gathered that evening, which totalled $400.

The local group concept was organized by Cheryl Hamilton and Joleen Thomas, but the event was and will continue to be largely kid and teenager-run. Space at the Minden community centre was sponsored by Curry Chevrolet Buick GMC Ltd.

A second meeting will take place later this year, likely in a Haliburton location, and interested school-aged youth from anywhere in the county are welcome to join in at any time. For more information, visit 100 Kids Who Care Haliburton County on Facebook.

Riley Aleksander presents Monika Melichar of Woodlands Wildlife Sanctuary with the funds collected by the 100 Kids Who Care group on Feb. 5. The group of local youth brought donations to the meeting, where they heard from three organizations and voted for the one to support with their collective fund, which totalled $400.

Erika Hoare and Olivia Humphries managed the ballot table at the inaugural meeting of the 100 Kids Who Care event held on Feb. 5 at the Minden community centre.

SIRCH offers free lunch in February

DARREN LUM
County Life Staff

Yes, there is such a thing as a free lunch.

SIRCH Community Services is inviting the public to its Lunch is on Us offering every Thursday this month.

Held from 11 a.m to 2 p.m. at SIRCH Central, located at 2 Victoria St., in Haliburton, SIRCH invites people to dine in or take out to warm their bellies and their souls.

Angelica Ingram of SIRCH said the idea came from executive director Gena Robertson, who thought the challenges that come up in February – shovelling snow, cold weather and added expenses – makes it an ideal month to provide something for the community.

"Recognizing that others may be feeling the same way, SIRCH decided to do something to make February a little more fun, a bit less isolating, and just make life a little lighter for people during the dreaded February," Robertson wrote in a blog post on the SIRCH website.

She finishes her post by saying, "Bring some friends or make new ones. Eat in or take food home. Everyone is welcome. There's no charge and (even better) no dishes! Help us change February's reputation!"

Ingram said the success of this event will be determined by public feedback.

"Even if we have five people who say, 'This really made a difference in my day.' One of the first people that came in for lunch said, 'I really appreciate this.' He was taking a lunch out for him and his wife ... it seemed to brighten up his day. And that's all we need is just to hear from people that it makes a difference in their day and in their month," she said.

Donations will be accepted, but are not required, she adds.

On the first day the menu included a wide range of items for the meat lover to the veggie lover.

There were wings and rice, pulled pork on a kaiser sandwich and soup, and a vegan dish, saag mung dahl served with jasmine rice.

Cooking up the food was SIRCH's food initiatives co-ordinator Jay McIvor, who said the upcoming dates (Feb. 21 and 28) will likely offer a similar range to appeal to more people.

He said this event was made possible by Community Kitchen funds and a private donation.

Anje Hilkers of Carnarvon, who has come to SIRCH's food events before, dropped in on the first day when she saw the sign in town.

As several people came through the door, Hilkers received her order of soup for her husband and the saag mung dahl, for herself.

She said, "I love it. I think it's so nice and to see people here."

SIRCH Community Services food initiatives co-ordinator Jay McIvor serves up saag mung dahl at the Lunch is on Us event at SIRCH Central, located at 2 Victoria Street in Haliburton. Lunch is on Us provides the public an opportunity for a warm meal for no cost, including a chance to socialize from 11 to 2 p.m. every Thursday for the rest of February. /DARREN LUM Staff

McKnight still in Tory race

Minden resident Larry McKnight has reiterated his intention to seek the Progressive Conservative nomination for the riding of Victoria-Haliburton in the next provincial election. McKnight made his intentions known in a press release issued Monday.

The man had indicated last fall that he was willing to stand for the nomination. At that time speculation was running high that the then Premier William Davis would call an election. The leader of the Conservatives surprised many observers and, rather than sending the province to the polls, announced his own retirement.

The change in direction meant that McKnight was forced to put his bid for the local candidacy on hold.

According to his press release, he was active during the leadership campaign working as a co-ordinator for the Frank Miller effort in this county. McKnight notes in his press release, "At the convention, I was part of the 'tartan' strategy team" a group of Miller supporters.

McKnight has indicated that he is pleased with the choice of Frank Miller as the new leader of the PC's. "With his business background, Mr. Miller is the right choice to lead this province," McKnight said. He predicted that both the Liberal and NDP parties

It is perhaps fortunate that February was a short month because it wasn't too pleasant. Except for a sunny period between February 5 and February 11, it was either snowy or rainy. It was warmer than last February with more snow and rain.

Thanks to Bob Penfold for keeping records while Jane and I got away from it all. No snow in Florida.

Beer strike closes one hotel - others affected

The beer drought of the spring of '85 is only two and a half weeks old but it has already forced the closure of at least one beverage room in the county.

At eight o'clock on Saturday evening, the Dominion Hotel in Minden sold the last bottle of beer in stock and until a fresh supply of beer is delivered to the hotel, the doors to the establishment will remain closed.

Just up the street, the Rockcliffe Tavern still has a dwindling supply of draft and bottled beer but some of the more popular brands have been sold out.

Like many beer drinkers in the county, the owners of taverns stocked extra supplies of the suds in anticipation of the strike, but the increased demand across the province limited the size of the orders.

When rumours became reality and the doors of the Brewers Retail outlets were locked, there was a rush on the LCBO stores that stock limited supplies of domestic and imported brands.

The Kinmount outlet sold the entire stock of 300 cases in the first two days after the strike began.

The Minden outlet sold out the supply of domestic beer in two days and within a week the imported beer was also sold out.

Beerdrinkers in Haliburton found the shelves in the local outlet bare when the store opened on Wednesday morning.

Deprived of their beloved brew, many beerdrinkers are turning to other liquid refreshments.

At the Kinmount outlet, total cash sales remain the same but customers are now buying wine and liquor. There has been an increase in sales in Minden and Haliburton as private supplies of beer run out.

For the true afficionado, beer making kits are available and according to Wayne Henderson, owner of The Storeroom Natural Food store in Minden, sales of the kits have been brisk.

There may be some relief in sight. Tractor trailer loads of beer are crossing the border from the United States bound for the LCBO warehouses in Toronto and extra supplies are being flown in from Europe. Some of the imported beer will end up in LCBO outlets in Haliburton County as well as local taverns, but supplies, which are expected to arrive on Thursday, will be limited and will cost more than domestic beer.

Juveniles advance to Ontario semi-finals

The Minden Monarch Juveniles have advanced to the Ontario semi-finals after winning the fifth and deciding game in the quarter finals on Sunday in Erin.

Minden took the first two games in the series and it appeared as though they were on the way to a three game sweep, but Erin rebounded winning at home on Sunday, March 3.

The fourth game was played in Minden and the large crowd of supporters witnessed one of the few Monarch losses this season.

Erin jumped to a two goal lead early in the first period before Barry Boice put the Monarchs on the board with an assist from Boomer Stamp. Erin added another goal to make it 3-1 but with three seconds left in the period, Bernie Upton scored for Minden on an unassisted goal to give the team a psychological boost.

However, Erin kept on rolling and scored two more goals in the third period before Lennie Johnston narrowed the Erin lead to 5-3.

The Monarchs put on a lot of pressure in the remaining ten minutes of the period but were unable to catch up and the series was suddenly tied at two games apiece.

The Monarchs had their backs to the wall when they travelled to Erin on Sunday. The players knew that if they lost the game, it would be the end of their best season since 1978 and they were also aware that some of the fans in Minden had written them off.

However the players were keyed up for the game and the team produced their finest effort this season.

Boomer Stamp, Scott Hamilton and Barry Boice scored a pair of goals each in the victory with a lot of help from Tim Wood who assisted on four goals.

A minute and a half into the first period, Scott Hamilton knocked in the all-important first goal after taking a pass from Barry Boice and Tim Wood. Thirteen seconds later Erin tied the score at one all.

Less than two minutes later Boomer Stamp blasted in a shot on a pass from Tim Wood.

After a quick start by both teams the score remained unchanged until the three minute mark of the second period when Scott Hamilton drove in his second marker with help from Gord Wood and Tim Wood.

With less than a minute left in the period, Erin connected to make it 3-2 for Minden.

The Monarchs continued their strong play in the third period. A combination of aggresive forechecking and excellent puck control resulted in another goal from Barry Boice assisted by Bernie Upton.

Half way through the period Boomer Stamp made it 5-2 on an assist from Tim Wood. But with four minutes left in the game, Erin proved they were not conceding defeat as they scored their third goal.

However, the rest of the game belonged to Minden and in the dying minutes,
